NEWCOMERS' CORNER
'NC 9'

by J. D. Beasley

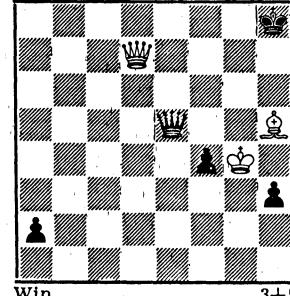

This will have to be my last NC; one's leisure will not accommodate all the things that one would like to fit into it. My thanks to all my various correspondents for their kind comments.

Though most NC material is taken from the easier end of the range, I have tried to include one more difficult piece in each issue, and this month it comes first. The basic strategy of Q+B/Q is simple enough. Bl, if allowed a free move, can normally start checking in such a way that W can prevent a perpetual check only by offering an exchange of Qs, which merely concedes the draw another way. If W has the initiative then he may be able to start checking in his turn, but unless he can force a quick mate or material win he will soon be unable to continue checking without repetition. There are, however, a few positions where Bl cannot usefully check for long even with the apparent initiative, and it is the intention of the studyist to explore these.

In NC9.1 (T. Kok, win), for example, initial W checks lead nowhere, but the quiet 1. Bg6! threatens mate and leaves Bl without a good check in his turn (1. . . Qe2† 2. Kg5 Qe5(g2)† 3. Kh6 and wK is safe). So Bl can only defend with 1. . . Qg7, which makes him more cramped.

Let us now forget bPs for a while and consider the possible W checks. With bKh8, bQg7 we have check on rank, Qg8; on diagonal, Qg7; on file, Kg7/8 (whichever is free). With bKg8, bQg7 we cannot play check on rank since ..Qf8 in reply will give Bl room to breathe, but check on diagonal forces ..Kh8, since ..Kf8 would allow check on rank, Ke7; on rank, Kf6/8 (else Qxg7); on rank, Ke7 again (since ..Ke5 would allow a diagonal spear check), and W can zigzag in to mate. With bKg7, bQg8 we have no sensible check since wBg6 is attacked. Have we overlooked anything? Yes, the lovely Qg5 (as in NC9.1 A), since now Bl's only checks can be met by Bf5† winning bQ.

NC.9.1                           T. Kok
1935

First, however, we must get rid of bPa2 and bPh3. This leads to 2. Qc8† (if 2. Qd8†? Qg8 3. Qd4(f6)† Qg7 and no progress is possible, nor does any line after 2. Qe8† Qg8 3. Qe5† Qg7 lead anywhere, as may be verified) Qg8 3. Qc3† Qg7 4. Qxh3† Kg8 5. Qb3† Kh8 (forced as above) 6. Qb8† Qg8

7. Qb2† Qg7 8. Qh2† Kg8 9. Qxa2† Kh8 10. Qa8† (there is no other way to bring wQ closer again) Qg8 11. Qa1† Qg7 12. Qh1† Kg8 13. Qd5† Kh8 14. Qd8† Qg8 15. Qh4† Kg7 and at last 16. Qg5! (NC9.1A).

NC.9.1A

Position in NC.9.1
after 16. Qg5

Black to Move 3+3

Now what can Bl do? Either bK move allows mate in two, and all bQ moves lose; the only cases that are not trivial are 16. . . Qb8 which loses bQ after lines like 17. Be8† Kf8 18. Qf6† Kg8 19. Qf7† Kh8 20. Qf8† and 21. Bg6†, 16. . . Qf8 which allows mate in four starting with 17. Bf5†, and 16. . . Qh8 which allows 17. Bh5† Kf8 18. Qc5† and mate or win of bQ in at most four moves more. This leaves only 16. . . f3. It is now obvious that the only safe move for wK is 17. Kh3! since 17. . . Qh8† loses as before to 18. Bh5†; certainly not 17. Kxf3? Qb3† 18. Bd3† and Bl is free. There remains 17. . . f2 18. Kg2 f1Q† 19. Kxf1 and W mops up after any Bl move as before.

This has been a longer exposition than is customary in this column, but I hope it will have shown that this particular wilderness is by no means devoid of tracks.

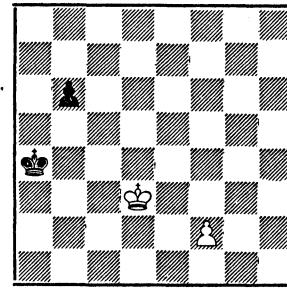

For the remainder of my set I have chosen three of Grigoriev's simpler pawn studies. In NC9.2 (win), let us first get the feel of the position by playing 1. f4 Kb5 (threatening to reach f8, which W must prevent) 2. Kd4 Kc6 3. Ke5 Kd7 4. Kf6 b5! and Bl will promote first. So we must head off bK before advancing wP, and since 1. Kc4 exposes wK to a surely undesirable check from bP (and indeed fails quite easily) the obvious move is 1. Kd4.

NC.9.2

N. D. Grigoriev

Izvestia, 1928

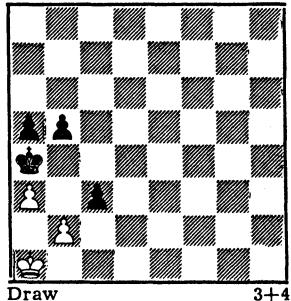

Win 2+2

Now should Bl run bP or fight to stop wP? If he starts running, 1. . . b5, then he must carry on doing so since this move blocks bK and after 2. f4 wP is out of reach; so we have 2. . . b4 3. f5 b3 4. Kc3! (to persuade bK within range of a check from f8) Ka3 5. f6 b2 6. f7 b1Q 7. f8Q† and either 7. . . Ka2 8. Qa8 mate or 7. . . Ka4 8. Qa8† and 9. Qb8†.

Alternatively, let us try 1. . . Kb5 trying to stop wP. The immediate further shut-out 2. Kd5 is now necessary, since 2. f4 Kc6 transposes back into the line we tried first, and the logical continuation is 2. . . Ka6 still trying to get round to f8. (If instead 2. . . Ka4, hoping to have diverted wK far enough to allow bP to run, then 3. f4 b5 4. f5 b4 5. Kc4! b3 6. Kc3 Ka3 leads back into the line after 1...b5) Now we play 3. f4, threatening if Bl runs to pick up the new bQ with Qa8† and Qb8†. So Bl must continue trying to defend with 3. . . Kb7, but he loses after 4. f5 Ke6 Kd8 6. Kf7 b5 (Bl has regained the lost tempo by forcing wK to go in front of wP but at the cost of exposing himself to check from f8) 7 Kg7 b4 8 f6 and promotes with check. If this was an example of a P-race, Nc9.3 (draw) looks more like a case where we may be trying to lose

NC.9.3 N. D. Grigoriev
Shakhmaty, 1925

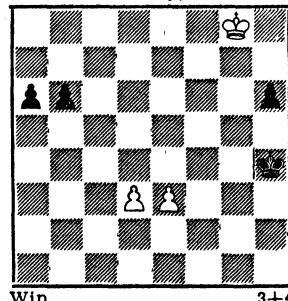

Draw 3+4

a tempo. Both 1. bc? Kxa3 and 1. Kb1? Kb3 lose quickly, so we are left with 1. Ka2 which threatens immediate mate. The reply 1 ... cb 2. Kxb2 would lead to a quick draw, so B1 must try 1 ... b4. Now if W tries to be clever with 2. b3+ he will lose: 2 ... Kb5 3. a4† Kc5 4. Kb1 Kd4 5. Kc2 (else 5 ... c2) Ke4 (say) 6. K-- c2! 7. Kxc2 (nothing else is better) Ke3 and turns the W position. So we play the straightforward 2 ab, and the reply 2 ... ab is obvious and best. Now 3. b3† loses roughly as before, 3. bc bc 4. Kb1 (or 4. Ka1 Ka3 5. Kb1) Kb3 is a standard B1 win and 3. Kb1 Kb3 is almost as easy, so we must try 3. Kal!, which turns out to give the anticipated crucial tempo loss (3 ... Kb3 4. Kb1 drawing). But have we not overlooked the obvious, in the shape of 3 ... c2? No, for after 4. b3† B1 must either give stalemate or allow W a safe capture of c2; after 4 ... Kb5 5. Kb2 Kc5 5. Kxc2 Kd4 6. Kd2 wK is in time to stop the turning movement.

NC 9.4 (win) is another race, in an apparently featureless position in which B1 will presumably promote immediately after W with a draw. But 1. d4 puts on some pressure by threatening to promote

NC.9.4 N. D. Grigoriev
Schachmaty, 1928

with check, and leads to 1 ... Kg5 (... Kg4 2. d5 Kf5 3. Kf7 amounts to the same) 2. Kf7! (now 2. d5 allows 2 ... Kf6 which probably wins for B1, a typical line being 3. Kf8 h5 4. e4 h4 5. d6 (if 5. Ke8 then Ke5 and W is a tempo behind the main line since he has still to play Ke7) Ke6 6. e5 h3 7. Ke8 h2 and B1 promotes first) Kf5 (W was still threatening to promote (with check) 3. d5 (now W is so far ahead that B1 cannot afford to run) Ke5 4. e4. Strange how the featureless position has suddenly become tight. Now any attempt at further defence by 4 ... Kd6 will lose easily to 5. Kf6 - if this is not in fact obvious, try a few lines - but B1 can now afford to run since W must lose a tempo for Ke7. So which bP shall we run? Let us take them from left to right. If 4 ... a5 then 5. Ke7 a4 6-8 d8Q 9. Qh8†, if 4 ... b5 then 8. d8Q b1Q 9. Qd6† Kxe4 10. Qg6† and if 4 ... h5 then 8. d8Q h1Q 9. Qd6† Kxe4 10. Qc6†. Poor old B1, helpless as usual. Indeed one could even give him an i-pawn and he would still lose.

Grigoriev left no book as such, but a Russian collection of his studies and miscellaneous writings was published in 1954, and an Italian version, edited by G. Porreca, appeared from Mursia in 1965. It makes fascinating reading and should be on the shelf of every study enthusiast and practical chess-player.

Reflected or rotated diagrams.

Not infrequently the identical position is encountered but reflected left for right, or, if there are no pawns, rotated (and maybe reflected as well). There are least four reasons why this might have been done.

1. To place the majority of men on W squares, in order to ensure optimum clarity of the printed diagram. (Paper and print quality can leave much to be desired, for instance when B1 men occupy B1 squares.)
2. To make the position more "natural", by placing one or both K's nearer their starting squares (e1, e8) in a game.
3. To facilitate comparison with similar positions. This was the stated intention of H. Keidan in the problems and endings sections of Lasker's Chess Magazine, as Richard Harman has found (viii.08). He announced that in future all such positions would be published with bK on a W square.
4. To place obstacles in the way of solvers with good memories and good libraries. This device was used by Ceskolovensky Sach for many months in featuring a pawnless study on the front cover.

These are editorial devices, but composers also tend to adopt one convention or another. C.M. Bent adopts No. 2, for instance.

Recent literature.

"Idle Passion", a psycho-analytic treatment, and definitely "anti" chess, is worth reading (author: Alexander Cockburn). In my opinion his most illuminating suggestion is that move alternation in chess makes the game an ideal means of sublimating violence. That is, there is a semblance of conflict, but in a purely rationalised form. In genuine violence (outside a game like chess) force is used simultaneously by both parties.

"Checkmate in Prague", by Ludek Pachman. Apparently the GM composed studies early in his chequered career. There is a passing mention of Prokop, and several mentions of Ludek's composer, and elder, brother Vladimir, now a GM of composition.

TOURNEY ANNOUNCEMENTS

It will be the 4th Jubilee Tourney of E G. Closing date: 15.xi.76. Send to: Prof. Neil McElvie, c/o Manhattan Chess Club, 155 East 55th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022, U.S.A. (Do NOT send to AJR). Judge: A. J. Roycroft. (Twins, and study whose primary points is retroanalysis, will NOT be accepted.) First Prize: $50.00. The award will be published in E G, probably in EG48.

EDITOR'S ITEMS

1. Renewal to EG45-48: on receipt of this issue, the £2.00 renewal is due. After EG48, the amount of the annual subscription is sure to increase, even drastically.
2. COZIO! In the ii.76 issue of the Italian SCACCO! is a 2-page article giving the results of Sig. Adriano Chicco's researches. His full name was Carlo Francesco Cozio, and although his exact dates are not known, it seems reasonable to surmise ca. 1715-ca. 1780.

3. FIDE Album 1965-7 has appeared, and we are assured that the 1968-70 volume will not be long in following.

4. Among the notable supporters of EG's financial appeal was the British Friends of Chess organisation.

chess composition, or perhaps rather his 1824 book. Incidentally, Mr Umnov (Moscow) informs me that 97 in TTC, given in good faith as the earliest, known Russian study (also from Petrov's 1824 book) is in fact earlier, appearing in the Stratagèmes de Montigny in 1802.

The judge of this tourney was Korolkov, who reports in the vii.75 issue of the Bulletin of the Central Chess Club of the USSR that there were 193 entries from 112 composers in the studies section. AJR

Should this tourney be a "Jubilee" or a "Memorial"? It seems reasonable to keep "Jubilee" for living composers and "Memorial" for a deceased composer, however long ago he died. Had the event been a "Centenary" instead of 150 years, there would have been no problem of nomenclature! AJR

JRH reports that he has 19 studies showing a WK march to and fro in order, eventually, to put bK in Zugzwang. Earliest appears to be Blathy (1890), see Problem 7-9 p. 137. All these studies are characterised by masses of P's. Of particular interest is Kok (1934), No. 195 in his collection, which shows several times repeated K-march. None of these is an explicit anticipation.
